We are troubled more often by what we imagine than by what is real.

Seneca, Letters 13.4

spark wonder